8. EXPIRED DOMAINS

If you request that you no longer wish to have your domain name renewed or the relevant domain name registry has not received all relevant renewal fees to process that renewal (whether directly from you or through us), that domain name will expire and any Domain Name Services that we provide applicable to that domain name will be suspended. Your domain name will then go into a protected period, after which your domain name will be suspended by the domain name registry and will go into a grace period. Please contact us for more information on the protected period and grace period for your domain name, as these differ from domain name registry to domain name registry. If you do change your mind and still wish to renew your domain name within the grace period, you still can but you may be charged additional fees as set out by the domain name registry. Any such additional fees will be passed on to you, and all outstanding fees (including all relevant renewal fees) will need to be settled in full before the renewal of your domain name. After the grace period your domain name will be cancelled and deleted from the register and made available for resale through a third party registrar. We cannot guarantee the renewal of a domain name after the grace period expires. Subject to Clause 18.3 or Clause 19.3 (as applicable), we shall have no Liability for any failure by you to act in a timely manner to make arrangements with us to redeem any domain name registration within the grace period, or for any subsequent failure of the domain name to be renewed.
